Mrs. Anderson:

I'm awfully sorry for the couple of arguments we've been in! I really think your a wonderful person and a wonderful teacher. Kenny and I will be over during the Summer to see you all. God bless and protect you, Mrs. Anderson. Love,

Barbara Martin

My Dear Mrs. Anderson,

For the past three years you have been not only ~~to~~ my personal guidance counsellor, but my truly dearest friend. Every-time I think of all the time you've put in just for the benefit of every student in this school, it makes me cry. You sure are great, great, great.

All my love forever and always,

Ann A. Beusch

Northwood's development has been guided by many capable teachers. Miss Ann Beusch is such a teacher. She brings to her French classes both a fluency in languages and an enthusiasm for her subject and her students.

Educated in Canada and the United States, Miss Beusch received degrees from McGill and Laval Universities and studied further at Radcliffe and Johns Hopkins. Her teaching experience includes Latin, typing, and shorthand, as well as French. Miss Beusch heads Northwood's language department and acts as its representative in all official County language business. She is familiar to many students as the Senior Class Sponsor this year and as past sponsor of the French Honor Society.

It is in recognition of her outstanding service to Northwood High School that we, the yearbook staff, salute Miss Ann Beusch and dedicate to her the 1963 ARROWHEAD.

Washington — Our Campus

Northwood is not confined to a few acres facing University Boulevard; Washington, our nation's capital, is also our campus. Washington is our patron; it has served Northwood throughout past years as a benefactor, giving us the opportunity to study, to experience, and to enjoy its many intellectual, political, and cultural advantages.

If the high school years are to be valuable, the student must be prepared to assume his place in a rapidly advancing world. Northwood has found intellectual stimulation not only in the classroom, but also in a city that reflects the intellectual achievements of the nation. Washington provides Northwood with an impetus and a realization of its educational aspirations.

Future responsibility will be met by present preparation. Northwood readies its students for a share in Washington's tradition of service by intent observation of the work of the American government. Concern and application are characteristic of today's student and tomorrow's citizen. Washington stimulates this concern; Northwood imparts this application.

Development of cultural appreciation complements the educational process. Northwood, which offers its students many artistic and recreational opportunities, is enhanced by the cosmopolitan atmosphere of the national capital. The myriad of arts to which Washington is host provokes young talents and tastes. Again Washington inspires what Northwood employs.

Washington and Northwood share a commitment to America's future. The future of our country and its way of life depends on the effective consummation of this commitment. In the years of crisis to come, Northwood students will remember their debt to Washington's ideals.

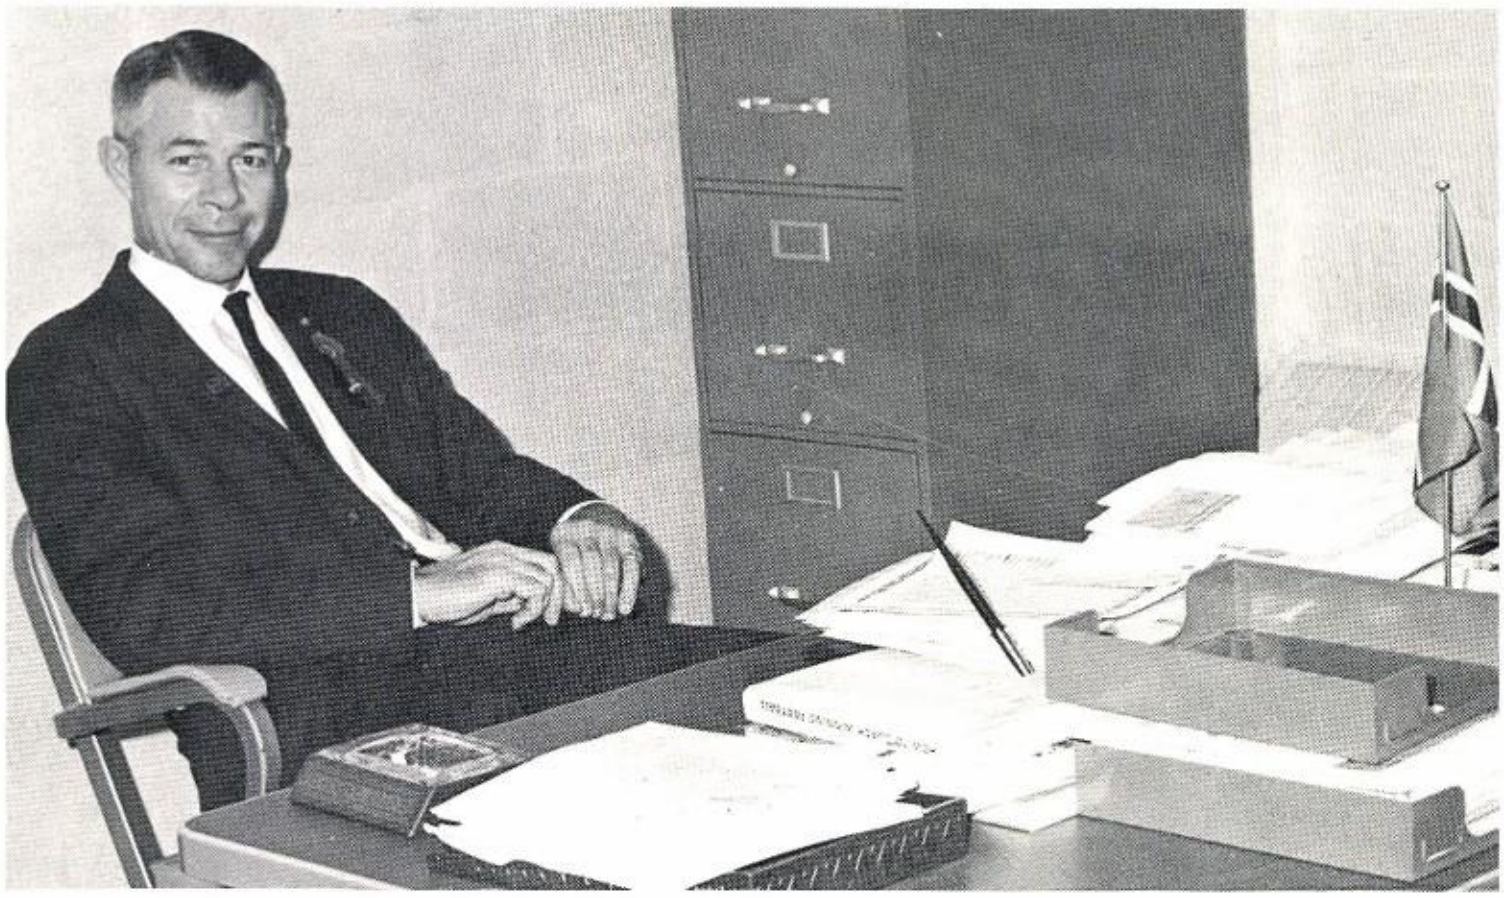
Teacher of Experience

Washington offers many opportunities for learning and to Northwood students this is perhaps the most beneficial of its diverse aspects. As the storehouse of the country's knowledge, Washington contains many institutions such as the Library of Congress and D. C. Central which house a wealth of information not available elsewhere. At museums like the Lincoln Museum and the Smithsonian Institute information on special fields is collected and displayed. But the advantage which Northwood students enjoy because of their nearness to Washington is not limited to research. They gain valuable, practical experience by being able both to examine the processes of our government and to observe them in action. Students benefit, too, from their exposure to the Washington newspapers in which national and international news is covered comprehensively and evaluated objectively. In general, students at Northwood owe to Washington and its facilities a certain depth in their studies and their wider conception of government and world affairs.

Capital administration



Northwood's principal, Mr. Harold Packard

Wearing his school spirit outfit, Mr. Packard addresses the student body.

In his fourth year as principal at Northwood, Mr. Harold Packard continues the firm administration that has made this school such a success. Mr. Packard is not only a strict disciplinarian; delighted students, watching his enthusiasm at sports events and other activities, have found that he is interested in all phases of school life. Particularly aware of Washington's influence on Northwood, Mr. Packard gives this advice to students:

> Since we do reside in the National Capital Metropolitan Area it is most fitting that the 1963 ARROWHEAD Staff focuses its readers' attention on the seat of our government. Our proximity to the source of many activities vital to national and international relationships entails a responsibility as well as an advantage. May we always make the best possible use of our easy access to this very important laboratory of human affairs.

This year Northwood welcomed a new Assistant Principal, Mr. Robert Smith, to its staff. Since having come to us from Richard Montgomery, Mr. Smith has shown an active interest in both the students and the school itself. As Dean of the Junior Class, he works closely with his students, as do Mr. Ward and Mr. MacHale, Deans of the Senior and Sophomore classes, respectively.

Duties of the Assistant Principals are many and varied. Attendance, curriculum, and care of the building and grounds are just a few of the responsibilities handled by these three men. With Northwood's student leaders, they coordinate social, athletic, and club activities.

An increasingly important job is that of the student counselor. It demands not only skill in public and personal relations, but also an acute understanding of the problems of students. Northwood is fortunate in having an excellent counseling staff. Each individual grade is provided with a counselor, and juniors and seniors have the added benefit of a college counselor aiding them in the successful choice of a school.

Northwood's science department contains the latest equipment and many able teachers, making the science courses as interesting and informative as possible. Interest in science at Northwood is stimulated by the Annual Science Fair, sponsored by the science department and the science clubs.

Mathematics students receive the benefit of many varied and modern courses. While they are studying the earliest principles of Euclid, they are also receiving the latest information available. One such class is that taught by Mr. Bouey. This group of students has been in the county math program for five years and is now being offered advanced math including calculus.

A vital part of Northwood's course offerings fall under the heading of commercial and industrial arts. This section of the curriculum involves many courses which will be of practical use almost immediately after graduation. Included in the commercial arts department are typing, business math, salesmanship, shorthand, consumer economics, bookkeeping, business organization, business law, general business, office practice, and business English. Industrial arts encompasses wood shop, print shop, metal shop, auto mechanics, pre-engineering drafting, architectural drawing, and mechanical drawing.

Commercial students prepare to enter the business world with quick minds and hands.

Northwood's art staff gained a new member this year, Mr. David Gammons, teaching Art 1 in addition to English 3. With emphasis on creativity, students find their art classes both stimulating and profitable. Besides their regular art instruction, outstanding creators have the opportunity to contribute to the Annual Art Show and to design stage sets for various plays and assemblies.

Mr. Paul Wenhold, who now directs the Concert Choir, replaced Mrs. MacAdoo in the music department. The band and orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Sickafus, add pep to such school functions as rallies, assemblies, and athletic events. The Northwood High School Marching Band also participates in many community parades and activities.

Home arts classes give future homemakers a chance to become proficient in sewing, cooking, and housekeeping. The girls get a chance to show off their new-found talents in the Annual Baking Contest, and the Fashion Show.

Although Juniors and Seniors are not required to take gym, a great many of them do. This is due to the quality and variety of physical education offered at Northwood. President Kennedy has repeatedly stressed the need for increased fitness in our youth, and the athletic program offered at Northwood gives students an opportunity to further themselves in this field. The boys take part in such diversified sports as soccer and tumbling, while the girls engage in modern dancing and workout on the trampoline. Both groups occasionally participate in coed activities, including volleyball and folk dancing.

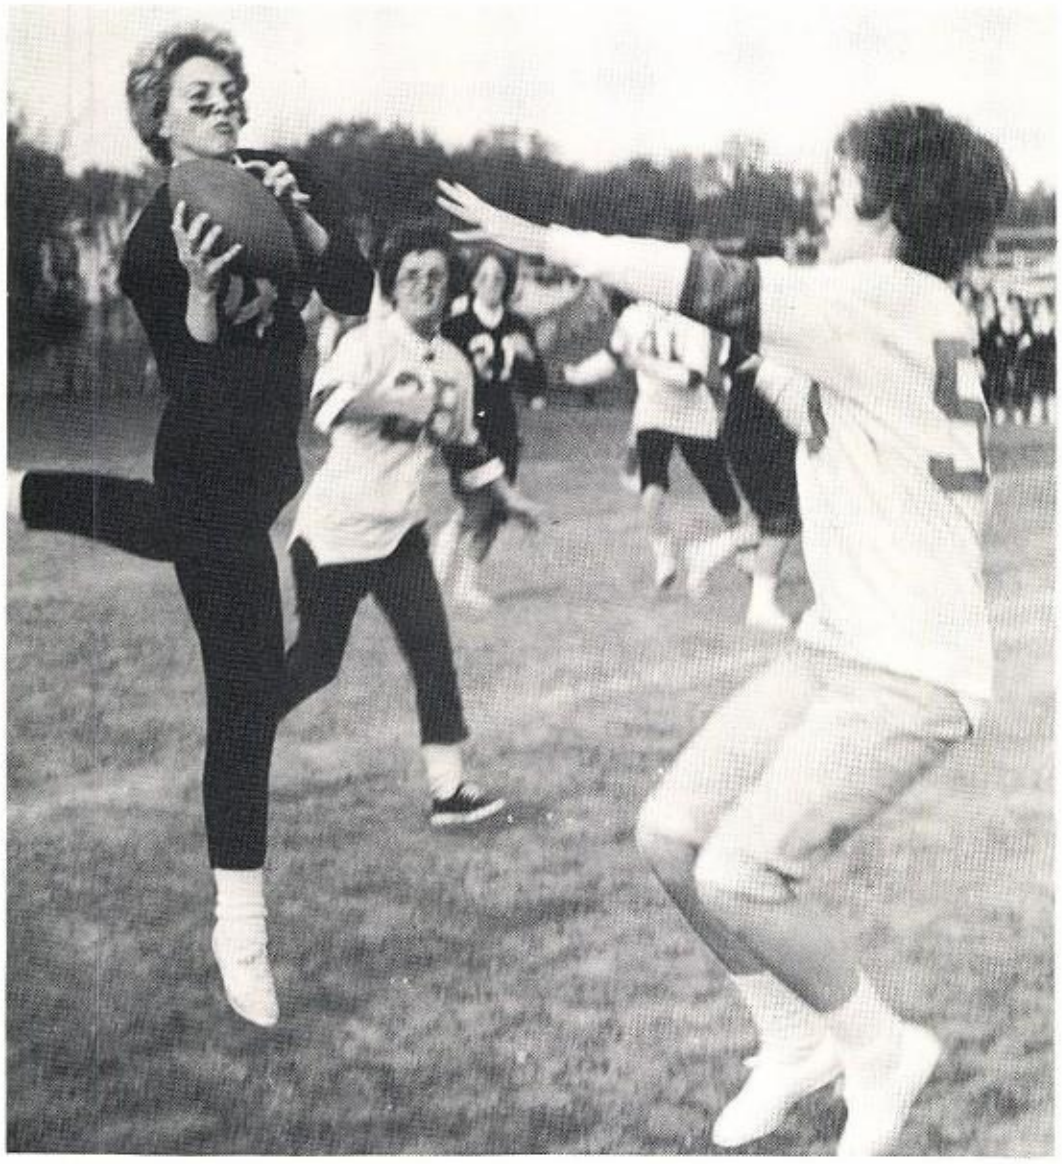
Cosmopolitan Culture

Northwood students acquire the habit of standing in line whether they are in the school cafeteria or in downtown Washington. This year Northwoodites queued up to view the Mona Lisa, the Da Vinci painting on loan to the American people from France. Lines were formed by concert-goers and balletomanes at Constitution Hall for performances of the National Symphony Orchestra and the new National Ballet Company. Northwood students were ticket-holders for the dramatic productions at the National theater, and filled seats at students' nights for Catholic University's "Medea" and American University's "The Wild Duck". Students have also taken advantage of special prices offered for them by the Theater Lobby, the Washington Theater Club, and the Arena Stage.

Folk music enthusiasts stood in line at Lisner Auditorium to see the Weavers and Odetta, while Shakespeare buffs anticipated the "Twelth Night" and "The Taming of the Shrew" at the Sylvan Theater. Northwoodites carried the phrases learned in their language classes to the local movie houses that programmed French, Spanish, German and Italian films. Washington has thus aided students in extending the tastes and interests they have developed at Northwood.

Homecoming



Northwood's second Homecoming abounded with spirited activities including Father's Shirt Day, Mother's Apron Day, Honor the Football Player's Day, and an official Ugh! Day. Students took time out from these vigorous activities to attend, the solemn "burial" of a Blair Blazer. Senior girls demonstrated their gridiron skills in the Mock Football game as the amused boys cheered them on. Spirits burned on Friday night at the Bon Fire and Car Decorating Contest. Even though Saturday brought rain and the game with Blair was postponed, spirits were not dampened and Northwoodites enjoyed the Indian Homecoming Dance at which the Homecoming Queen was announced.

Charley's Aunt, often described as one of the funniest farces of several generations, was presented by the senior class, which combined the play's subtleties with its slapstick, its serious dialogue with well-conceived action. The play concerns the complications that arise when two Oxford boys, Jack and Charley, persuade a colleague to impersonate Charley's Aunt.

Assemblies, both entertaining and informative, provided students with a pleasant break from school work. Christmas spirit was aroused by a musical assembly attended by Northwood alumni as well as present students. The Hospitality Committee sponsored one of the most interesting assemblies of the year: International Understanding. Foreign Exchange students from area high schools, including Northwood's AFS student, Amé Becker, spoke to students about their homelands and their impressions of America. Following this part of the program, Student Congress presented a skit to promote the newly proposed Code of Dress. Other assemblies included an hour of enjoyable music by the Maryland State Band, a Brotherhood assembly, a remembrance of Thanksgiving, an inspiring Honor Society Induction, and several pep assemblies.

This year was no exception to the fact that the Winter Wonderland has always been an important event in Northwood's social calendar. Almost unrecognizable under strands of crepe paper, paper snowmen, real pine trees and sleds, the gymnasium was transformed into a glittering snow scene. The Stardusters were at their best as they played for the many couples present. The selection of a queen from the court of the seven princesses chosen by the entire student body provided an exciting climax to a pleasant evening.

Despite a last minute struggle with the wrestling team over the use of the gym, the Student Congress held its annual Vice-Versa Dance on February 21. The girls, it seems, were not bashful in exercising their yearly privilege of inviting dates; Cupid's Ambush, as the dance was aptly named, was well attended. The decorations, which brought an air of early spring to Northwood, featured a wishing well, and a garland-covered swing.

Contests, welfare drives, and other activities all figure in Northwood life. The All-School Production, "Anything Goes," presented April 4 and 5, proved that many hours of work put in by students had not been wasted. New to Northwood this year was the bank, a branch of the Citizens' Building and Loan Association. The student savings system proved so popular that the bank took over all club checking accounts. The Welfare Committee collected three thousand cans of food for Montgomery County's underprivileged. Proceeds from the annual Paperback Book Sale, February 18 to March 15, were used to buy new library books. The library was also invaded by a display of the baked goods made for the Home Arts Bake-off contest. In another contest, the students bowed to the faculty at the Senior-Faculty basketball game. Amé explains the conjugation of a German verb to Karen Peller, German II student.

American Field Service student Ilse (Amé) Becker brought to Northwood a charm and enthusiasm which quickly won the friendship of her classmates. A representative of the town of Minden, Westphalia, Germany, Amé found life in the United States busy but fun. For Amé one of the pleasures of being an AFS student was the opportunity it provided for speaking to Americans about her country. In talks before many school and community groups, she expressed opinions which showed her awareness of matters varying from the Berlin wall to dating customs in her country.

Already busy with homework and AFS duties, Amé still found time for Latin club meetings, Girls' Service Club projects, and All-School Production rehearsals. A big smile and a cheerful "Hi, dahling!" at football games, school plays, and dances are a part of the German fraulein whom Northwoodites will remember long after Amé has returned to her home.

Making a wish, Amé blows out the candles on the birthday cake given to her as a surprise by the Student Congress.

Student Center

A Northwood student is not limited by the six hours he spends attending classes five days a week. His life does not begin at eight and end at two-thirty. Rather it is the sum of the hours of study and of the hours of leisure. His after school hours form a balance between companionship and solitude. Washington is his companion and his servant.

Its restaurants and coffee shops are a congregating place for Northwood students after dances and plays. The Italian influence of Gusti's and the Roma and the continental air of the Shadows and the Gallery Coffeehouse produce an atmosphere alien to the halls of Northwood.

On warm afternoons Great Falls is a favorite picnic and hiking spot for students. For those who would rather ride, there are the many bridle paths in Rock Creek Park or the trail through the Washington Zoo. In summer there are the rides at the amusement park; in winter there is skating on the Reflecting Pool of the Washington Monument. Finally sightseeing in the nation's capital with friends provides year-round pleasure for each student. All of these activities combine to form his social life—the life of an educated and aware person.

Northwood's seniors, fortunate in having one of the few Class Councils in the area, take full advantage of its benefits. Under the supervision of Miss Ann Beusch, class sponsor, representatives from the seventeen senior homerooms plan fund raising activities to help reduce senior fees. This year activities included the Senior Play, Senior Movies, Hillbilly Breakfast, and the annual Winter Wonderland. A well-planned Senior Week and the first Prom to be held in a Washington hotel capped the seniors' final year at Northwood.

JUNIOR CLASS COUNCIL: Sitting: S. Brill; B. Roper; J. Hall; J. Ferguson; B. Dahlstrom. Standing: J. Lee; D. Warner; D. Goldstein; J. Ripps; B. Daum; N. Louden; B. Sheehan; B. Park; S. Taylor; J. Jones; A. Dobyns; N. Adams; S. Cass.

Under the guidance of Richard B. Hite, the Junior Class Council endeavors to plan worthwhile projects for the 1962-1963 school year. While the juniors eagerly await their senior year, they waste no time in participation in such i n t e r e s t i n g activities as the class play, the class breakfast, and the all-important Junior Prom. In weekly meetings and homeroom reports, the Junior Class Council works diligently to represent the Class of 1964 in this, the year of anticipation and preparation.

Aiding the Building and Grounds Committee, President John Hall plants a tree to improve the appearance of the front lawn.

Discussing plans for the year are B. Roper, V.P., J. Ferguson, Treas., J. Hall, Pres., B. Dahlstrom, Parl., S. Brill, Sec.

The Sophomore Class Council has well begun its ask of organizing the newest members of Northood's student body into the class of '65. Under he supervision of Miss Dorothy Schmiedeler, it as attempted to coordinate the class by increasing he number of group activities. This year it has nade plans for a newspaper and a class directory, ponsored the usual Sophomore Class Dance and ssessed sophomore dues.

Washington—

Democracy in Action

When a Northwood student joins a club, he does a service both for himself and for the school. By indicating an interest in a particular subject area and working on club activities, he shows that he is not a passive object of the "educational process". In a similar manner, the club makes a valuable contribution to the student and to the school by providing the opportunity for learning with the incentive of a social gathering. This year the various clubs at Northwood have performed another important function by linking the school to Washington, D. C. While seeking to accomplish their individual purposes, they have discovered and utilized Washington's social, intellectual, and cultural resources.

Language clubs have patronized the French, Spanish, and German restaurants in Washington and have attended the foreign films that are currently so popular. For the band and orchestra, there have been regular concerts at Lisner Auditorium and Constitution Hall. The art club has visited the National Gallery and taken sketching trips to the zoo. Many of the clubs have recruited speakers from the museums, newspapers, embassies, and government agencies in Washington. Washington has also been a significant influence on the activities of the Student Congress, which has observed and profited from the example of democracy in action.

Supervising all business of the Student Congress at Northwood is the Executive Committee. Composed of all officers and committee chairmen, the Executive Committee screens all legislation before it appears on the floor in the Representative Assembly. Each homeroom delegate must submit to the committee, in writing, any motion which he wishes to be brought up. This procedure was adopted after regulation of motions on the floor became chaotic.

All official clubs at Northwood belong to the Co-Council, the assembly which handles problems among the clubs. One of the major topics this year was the yearbook's new policy of charging clubs for their space in the ARROWHEAD. Besides handling interclub relations, the Council, headed by the Student Congress Vice-President, also handled club relations with the administration.

Social Committee activities this year provided a full calendar for Northwood students. Beginning the year with The Reservation Rant, an affair calculated to produce school spirit for the upcoming football season, the committee also provided extra services for teachers, such as placing apples and welcome notes in faculty mailboxes. Other events sponsored through the year were the Vice-Versa, which, despite many complications, was a financial success, School Spirit Week, and the farewell dance in June.

In 1962-63, the Citizenship Committee conducted homeroom representative elections, planned an Induction Assembly, and presented a motion in Montgomery County Regional Association of Student Councils concerning honor roll standards. In addition, a cafeteria improvement plan, Citizenship Week, and a Student Congress Scholarship were coordinated by the committee, as was the publishing of an honor roll for every six-weeks.

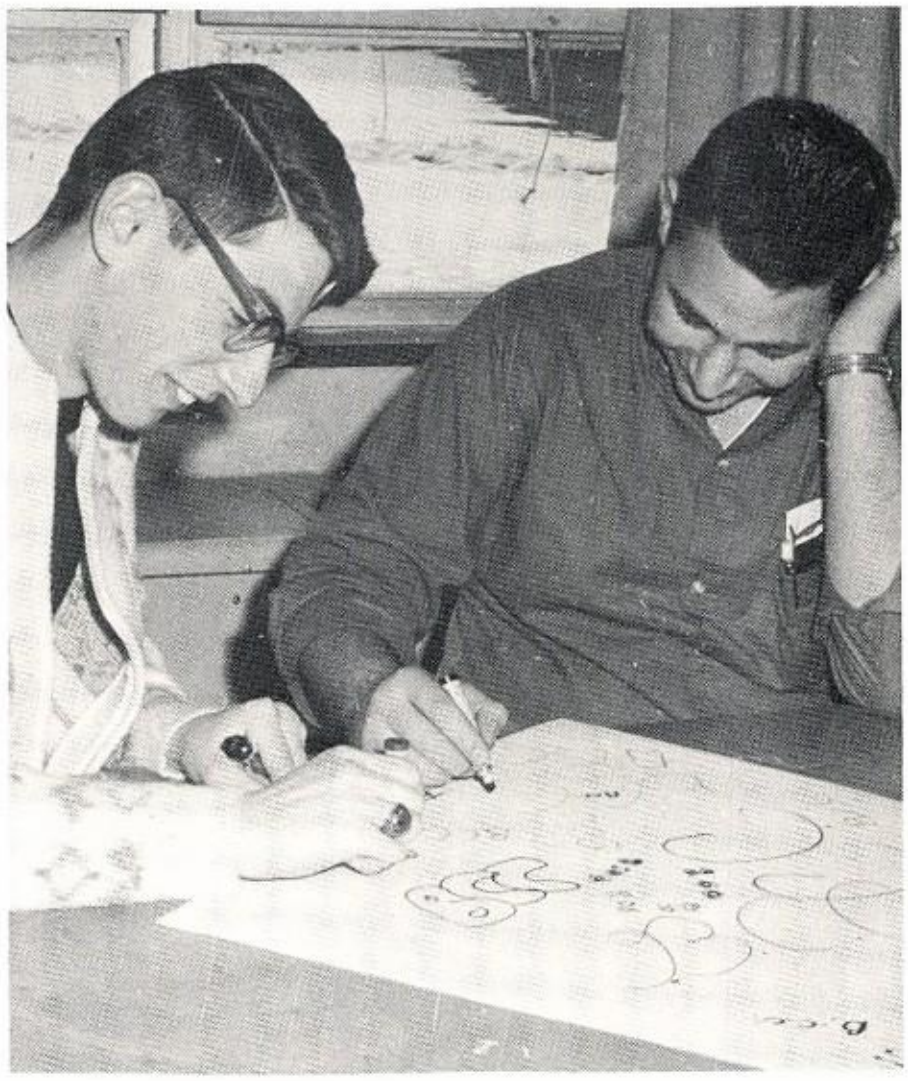
As its name implies, the In-School Publicity Committee handles all publicity at Northwood for activities sponsored by various school groups. Although the committee is mainly a Student Congress organ, it is not limited to publicizing Student Congress events only. The Welcome Dance, Homecoming, the World Culture Week, the Vice Versa, the ASP, and Student Congress Elections in May were just a few of the publicity assignments handled by the group. Aiding the committee this year was the establishment of two new bulletin boards primarily for In-School Publicity purposes; a Student Congress and a game-schedule bulletin board.

Functions of the Out-of-School Publicity Committee include the gathering, writing, and sending of weekly Northwood news to local publications, such as the Record and the Sentinel. In conjunction with this program, the committee maintains a bulletin board outside the office on which are posted all new articles relating to Northwood, whether concerning sports, scholastic news, or special interest articles. Committee members appear on WINX radio every week to relate important teen news, in addition to posting bulletins of coming presentations all over the area.



In-School Publicity members, Ken Friedman and Mark Sandler, work together on an original poster publicizing a basketball game with BCC.

The art room, where Cheryl Hohm and Sharon McCeny are designing a runner for the hall, is the scene of many projects of In-School Publicity.

Kathy Weidman and Linda Greathouse post local news articles about Northwood on a bulletin board in the main hall, always the center of a large crowd.

First among the Hospitality Committee's many projects this year was the orientation program held last fall to familiarize incoming sophomores with the school. Selection of the Americans Abroad candidate, in conjunction with the Northwood AFS Chapter, also was supervised by the committee, as was the World Culture-International Understanding Assembly. Support of Northwood's Korean orphan, including the letters and gifts sent to her, are a part of the Hospitality Committee's program. A new feature inaugurated this year was the Birthday Bulletin Board in the main hall.

Community projects this year included work with both the Forest Knolls Elementary School and the Baptist Home For Children. Welfare Committee members, in the name of the school, donated appropriate materials to the handicapped children at Forest Knolls, while periodic visits for parties and picnics were made to the orphanage. The Canned Food Drive was also sponsored by this group. MEDICO received all money made from the performance of the Michigan State Band and the sale of NHS pins, while money made from the sale of pennants and booster buttons went to other funds. In conjunction with the Social Committee, the Wefare Committee planned and coordinated School Spirit Week.

Judy O'Neil, Frances Kellum and Tina Brockman wish they could buy some of the goods at the Hospitality Committee Bake Sale.

tutors students

Northwood's chapter of the National Honor Society boasts a membership which reflects the quality of the school. Already having a membership composed of more than sixty seniors, the Society inducted even more outstanding seniors and juniors in the recent May ceremonies. This ceremony highlighted the qualifications a student must show before he or she is eligible for membership in the Honor Society. High achievement in leadership, scholarship, character and service must be shown not only in the school but also in the community. Once a person has become a member of the Society, he must strive even further to uphold the honor which he has received. In keeping with this trust. the Honor Society this year maintained a free tutoring service for all students in need of such aid.

Outstanding contribution to one of Northwood's literary publications, either the ARROWHEAD, the Red and Black, or Reflections, is recognized by induction into the Quill and Scroll Society. Although the Society is an official body of Northwood, it is not an active organization.

The newly formed Spanish Honor Society held its second induction December 11 and inducted fifteen new members. The society provides its members with a chance to develop their interest in the Castilian language and peoples. Under the sponsorship of Mrs. Lola D'Amador, the students planned a trip to the Pan American Union and lunched in one of Washington's excellent Spanish restaurants.

Northwood's Thespian Troupe is composed of those students who were awarded points on a system devised by the National Thespian Society for their efforts in the school's dramatic productions. The Troupe held two inductions of members, one in December, 1962 and the other in May of 1963.

Mathletes unite at Northwood!! This year the Math Honor Society formed a math Competition Team, whose members call themselves mathletes. When not engaged in solving complicated problems, these prodigies, and the other, equally cerebral, members of the club, attended lectures given by professional mathematicians. The purpose of all this activity was to promote interest in and knowledge of mathematics.

La Societe Honoraire de Francais, an elective association of French students having exceptional ability, met under the direction of Mrs. Margaret Boone, to plan its activities. One of the major projects of the society was the tutoring of students having difficulty in their French studies. Plans were also made for field trips to Maryland University language laboratories and to a French restaurant in Washington and for the induction of new students in the spring.

Spanish Club members found a new sponsor this ar in Miss Alice Gumpper. Miss Gumpper, who aches both Spanish and English, accepted the sponrship of the club even though this was only her rst year at Northwood. Under her direction club embers arranged a showcase exhibiting Castilian tifacts and showing the Spanish way of life, inuding many interesting Spanish customs. During gular meetings enthusiasts viewed movies explaing life in Latin American countries.

"Ici on parle francais" is the motto of one of orthwood's oldest clubs, the French Club, which as long enjoyed a tradition of supplementing the rench students' understanding and appreciation of rench civilization. Sponsored by Mrs. Spector and liss Perez, the club met monthly for discussions, ctures, and movies. The especially interesting acivities this year included attending the services of French congregation in Washington and listening o a speech by the chief of the Montgomery County anguage Department.

This year the Latin Club widened the area of its activity to include other cultural projects as well as those related to Latin. Their most ambitious undertaking was a trip in March to New York to view the works on display at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. As in the past, the club produced the Latin newspaper, Pegasus, and planned the traditional Latin Banquet in the style of the ancient Romans.

German Club members conducted their search for German culture with great gemutlichkeit, or good fellowship, this year. Although unable to discover a biergarten, they sampled German cuisine at the Old Europe, Washington's German restaurant. They held a Christmas celebration complete, with German style refreshments, for the German clubs of area high schools, and attended a local production of Goethe's Hermann und Dorothea. With the emphasis more on gemutlickeit than culture, they also went ice-skating at College Park and sold candy apples at Northwood football games.

Acting as a type of service club composed exclusively of boys, the Wheel Club performs many worthwhile tasks at Northwood. With membership by election only, the boys represent the school's ideals of leadership, scholarship, and service. This year the members of the club, among other things, sponsored a Christmas program for a nearby rest home and aided the school in the running of the canned food drive.

Continuing its service to the school and the community, the Girl's Service Club again sponsored a group of retarted boys at the Laurel Home for Children. In addition, the club members ushered at school events and provided a needy family with a Thanksgiving dinner. One of the most enjoyable activities for the girls was the Mother-Daughter Banquet held in March.

A visitor backstage at Northwood would no doubt nd himself impressed and bewildered by the mass f intricate equipment on hand. The stage crew andles all manual staging required for both minor nd major production, from the switching of sets the operation of the colored spotlights. Without ne aid of this group of boys, school presentations ould not have been able to achieve such a high egree of success.

Members of the Circle N Society are chosen for ny outstanding contribution to the school. Every tudent is eligible for membership during any of is three years at Northwood, and awards are given nsecutively. Continued outstanding service must e shown for the award to be extended for a second nd third year. The Society sold cokes at the All chool Production as one of their projects.

With Northwood's increased enrollment, the traf- ic problems concerning the school have grown emendously. These problems have been compound- d by the unique system of entrances recently con- tructed on University Blvd. Handling this traffic as the job of the school patrols, who regulated the ow at such major events as Back To School Night nd College Night.

Modern teaching methods are relying more and ore on improved audio visual aids. In connection ith this development, the Audio Visual Club at orthwood has become increasingly important. Made p of interested boys, the group keeps the school's udio visual equipment in top shape.

Through the efforts of the Girls' Sports Association, interest and participation in girls' athletics has increased. Each year the association plans a program of intramural sports which enables members to participate in basketball, hockey, volleyball, and softball activities. The group sponsored honor teams consisting of the school's best players in a particular sport, who competed against honor teams from other schools in the area. In addition to participation in sports, sold booster buttons, and helped plan the annual Homecoming weekend, in co-ordination with the "N" Club. The climax of a busy year came at the slumber party, where girls who had excelled in sports throughout the year received special awards.

The chief function of the Northwood chapter of the Future Homemakers of America was to give its members an opportunity to increase their domestic skills beyond the limits of the school's home arts program. Sponsored by the two home arts teachers, Dr. Virginia Moses and Mrs. Dorothy Preston, the members of the FHA this year planned and presented their annual fashion show, helped in the annual home arts bake-off, and donated Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners to a needy family.

Members of the Future Teachers of America this year gained firsthand impressions of their future vocations from talks by various Northwood faculty members. The aspiring students also observed classes and in some cases actually taught classes in nearby elementary schools. They also provided helpful services for teachers, such as supplying the teachers' lounge with cookies to observe National Education Week at Northwood.

Promoting better understanding of science among students and faculty is the purpose of Northwood's Science Club. In line with this objective, club members meet to view films and discuss scientific advancement with prominent men in various fields. An annual project of the club is the sponsoring of a science fair designed to encourage outstanding students to engage in research.

New to Northwood this year, the Medical Careers Club has turned the goals of many students toward the fields of medicine. Their field trip to nearby Holy Cross Hospital and the benefits of many speakers have lent interest and enthusiasm to a year spent primarily in organization. The Medical Careers Club looks forward to bigger things in future years.

Northwood interests

Posing for an informal picture are Chess Club members Bruce Haisfield, Sam Kaplan, Alan Corbett, Bob Greenspun, and Jim Shelton.

The amount of noise produced at Chess Club meetings was no indication of the activity of the club members. Northwood chess enthusiasts spent several hours each week silently pondering the position of kings and pawns. Their practice prepared them for participation in the county tournament and assured them victories over area schools.

The Northwood Radio Club is one of the school's most active and ambitious clubs. The major projects pursued this year were the construction of a five hundred foot antenna at Northwood. The Radio Club under the supervision of Mr. Edward M. Nye, met weekly for instruction and operation of the club's equipment.

Whether they enjoy acting or staging, members of the Curtain and Cue Club learn more about dramatics through lectures on such topics as make-up and sets, and by presenting pantomimes and dialogues at meetings. This year members of the club presented "Pinocchio" as a special project for Children's Hospital and staged a one-act play before a school assembly.

Through the Business Dept., commercial students have the opportunity to increase their knowledge and experience in various clerical fields. This year, for the first time, the Business Club sponsored a program by which members are able to obtain outside jobs in order to gain on-the-job experience. Another activity of the club was origination and organization of Northwood's first school bank. While performing an invaluable service to the school, Business Club members engaged in the venture gained valuable experience and knowledge of banking skills.

"Words, words, words . . . " are the specialty of the Northwood Speech and Debate Club. Newly organized, the club has been busy training novice speakers for the various oratorical events sponsored by area universities. They have also given members invaluable experience in research, organization, and speaking, while at the same time stressing concern and understanding of current international problems.

Northwood's active Library Club, while perform ing an important service to the school, gives in terested students an opportunity to gain experience in library work. Besides serving as Library Aides club members try to increase interest in the school library through various projects. One such project was a successful contest in which certain books were designated as prize books, unknown to the stu dents, and the first students to check the books out received a prize. Other activities of the club in cluded a pot-luck dinner, Valentine contest, and a white elephant sale. Two successful projects begun last year, the elementary school story-telling project and the paperback book sale were continued success fully this year.

Service means music to members of Northwood's Concert Choir. Under the direction of new faculty member Mr. Paul Wenhold, the choir recorded Christmas carols for WMAL radio and presented musical programs for church and community groups. A concert was also given for the grateful patients at the Maryland Institution for Women. Members of the choir performed for Northwood students at the Thanksgiving, Brotherhood, and Christmas assemblies and at the Annual Spring Concert on May 3. Their excellent rendition of the Alma Mater was recorded for use in teaching the school song to future classes of Northwoodites. Climaxing a busy year, the choir sang for departing seniors at baccalaureate and graduation exercises in June.

Led by Mr. Sickafus, the orchestra participated in such functions as the Christmas Assembly, Honor Society Induction, Maryland Orchestra Day, the annual Spring Concert, and Baccalaureate. In addition, the orchestra travelled to Sligo Jr. High School to present a concert to the eighth and ninth graders there, and hopes to continue the practice of presenting such concerts to other schools in the county.

Northwood's Marching Band again proved its excellence this year. Not only did the band arrange and perfectly execute tricky manuevers at the halftime football shows, but it entered into many local events in competition with other area bands. Repeatedly, the band, under the continued direction of Mr. Charles Sickafus, marched away with the top prize, providing the school with many new trophies, rewards for the many hours spent on cold mornings preparing for the competition.

This year Northwood fans came to football games not only to see the team, but also to watch the Majorettes, who have become known throughout the county for their unique and expertly executed routines. Wearing asbestos uniforms, they gave an exciting flaming baton exhibition at the Homecoming Bonfire. Though the Majorettes were difficult to see in the dark, their batons were not, and a new Homecoming Week tradition was started.

This year Northwood students learned of a new concept in high school journalism: that the student newspaper is responsible for setting the pace and tastes of the students. This leadership, often resulting in stimulating controversy, has given the student population of Northwood an opportunity to form and air the critical opinions often lacking in high school students. The '62-'63 RED AND BLACK has proved to be a major impetus in Northwood's continuing movement toward social and intellectual maturity. Editor Mark Schulman won first place in the CSPA's national editorial contest.

has a laugh

During sixth period every day twenty-three energetic and conscientious students gathered to work on "The Book". Despite three missed deadlines, two New York conventions, one picnic, and one controversy with Co-Council, the staff of the 1963 Arrowhead, under the persistent direction of Mr. Ronald E. Redmond, was finally able to dispatch the dummy, or complete proof, to our publishers, Delmar.

It was decided last April that the Arrowhead's theme for 1963 would be Northwood's relationship to Washington. Work began with the taking of pictures in the late spring. During the summer the staff met to work on the summer supplement of the 1962 edition. With the opening of school in September, the yearbook staff began their sprint to the January deadline. The literary staff turned out its immortal prose, the art staff cut out little squares of paper and drew lines, the typing and personal pictures staff handled irate photographers and camera-happy students. The sports staff faithfully followed every Northwood athletic endeavor, while the business staff valiantly attempted to sell this yearbook to the dubious student body which failed to understand that a worthwhile yearbook was really being produced in spite of the staff's erraticism.

The staff wishes to thank the patrons, the sponsors, and all the patient faculty members for their cooperation in helping to get this edition to press and Nancy Kauffman for her cover design.

Washington—

A Great Competitor

Washington is by no means just a political, social, and cultural center. It is also a very popular sports hub. The new D. C. Stadium, able to seat 50,000 enthusiasts, is the home of two professional ball clubs. The summer months find the stadium enveloped in the roar and human electricity of the Capital's own baseball team, the Senators. Locally known as the "Nats", the team draws sizeable crowds, not only from surrounding suburbs, but also often from members of the diplomatic corps, who often have never before witnessed a baseball game.

Early winter marks the beginning of the football season in Washington. The Redskins, the other half of Washington's professional family, bring to fans the battering and fast moving game which is so popular in this area. Showing the spirit and initiative necessary in professional football, the Redskins have made vast improvements in the past few years. Although Washington does not boast a professional basketball team, it is the location of many college teams, which attract a large metropolitian following. Because of its proximity to Washington, Northwood enjoy the added opportunities of a sports capital.

"Wait 'till basketball season!" has often been the familiar cry of hope among Northwood students during losing football seasons, but things were different in the 1962-63 campaign. The Indians posted one of Northwood's best football records and remained in contention for the Montgomery County Championship until the last game of the season. Head Coach DeMoss molded a balanced offense with a rock-ribbed defense in building a winning team. The potent Northwood offense, combining the running of Ken Chatham, Bob Jensen, and Paul Bell, the accurate passing of Jerry May and Les Carter, and a hard-charging line, set a varsity scoring record when they rolled up fifty-four points against Bladenburg. The stout defense, coached by Mr. Millick and captained by Jim Bunting, shut out three opponents and yielded an average of less than ten points per game. Northwood has finally come into its own as a football power to be respected in Montgomery County.

Paul Bell reaches up to grab a pass from Jerry May in the Wheaton game. Paul hauled in the pass and broke away from tacklers to score Northwood's lone touchdown of the contest.

One of Northwood's strong points this season was the kicking department, handled capably by Bob Jensen. Here, Bob punts from deep in Northwood territory in the Walter Johnson game.

Turning his coaching efforts to football, Mr. McNelis led Northwood's Junior Varsity to a 4-4 season. The inexperienced squad showed great promise in winning their first three contests, including a 12-7 victory over Montgomery Blair. The Junior Indians featured a strong passing attack with Jim Tortorella at the controls. The brunt of the running game was carried by hard running sophomores Denny Heller and Jim Hesson.

First Place Tie ....Mont. Co. Meet
Second Place .....Md. State Meet

Northwood's 1962-63 cross country team achieved an outstanding record. In regular season meets the squad compiled a perfect record, defeating twelve opponents. Following this victorious competition, the Northwood squad tied for first place in the Montgomery County Meet and captured the runner-up position in the Maryland State Meet. Expertly coached by Mr. Clements, the team featured a powerful one-two-three finishing combination. Senior Buzz Lawlor won every race, including a victory in the State Meet making him the best cross country runner in Maryland. Buzz was often followed in quick succession across the finish line by Tom Rabenhorst and Bob Dunn. Although the top three harriers are seniors, the prospect for next year is promising with members of Northwood's championship Junior Varsity returning.

Another Northwood victory begins as runners from B. C. C., Blair, and Northwood set out on the two mile course.

Winning fourteen games while losing ony five, the 1962-63 varsity basketball team maintained Northwood's strength in this sport. Although hopes of a County championship were unfulfilled, the Indian cagers achieved a very successful season as their excellent record indicates. Under the capable direction of Coach Bolyard, the Northwood squad won a clutch home victory over Montgomery Blair and defeated County champion Walter Johnson. High scorers Rich Farmer and John Bowers, along with senior forward Dave Carrasco, were named to post season all-star squad by Washington newspapers at the close of the season.

Combining an excellent scoring punch, strong rebounding, and a scrappy defense, the 1963 Northwood Junior Varsity swept to an undefeated season. In his first coaching assignment at Northwood, Mr. Frey guided the squad to nineteen cousecutive victories. Included among these were double triumphs over Montgomery Blair, Walter Johnson, and Wheaton. High scorer for the Junior Varsity was Dick Perry who averaged over fourteen points per game, followed by Dave Robbins and Bill Gregg. Northwood's basketball future looks very promising with some of Coach Frey's well-trained cagers moving up to varsity rank.

Washington—

Our Patron

Washington is not an ordinary industrial city: its main patron is the government of the nation. Northwood is fortunate to be so near this center of international activity.

As the showcase of the nation, tourism in the District of Columbia is second only to Government, and Washingtonians take pride in showing their capital —one of the cleanest and most beautiful cities in the world. Reconstruction plans are constantly modernizing older parts of the city and adding to the newer ones. Parks and gardens give Washington beauty and charm, and the splendor of the Cherry Blossoms in full bloom around the Tidal Basin is one of the most beautiful sights in the world.

Proximity of Washington's Governmental business has greatly benefited the Metropolitan area, including Montgomery County. There are 428 manufacturing establishments in the District, and the Government employs one out of every three Montgomery County residents. The high salaries paid these workers make the income per capita higher in Montgomery County than in any other area in the country.

Excellent transportation and communication services make Washington ideal for small business. Trunk lines of railroads, transcontinental bus lines, and air routes are located in or near Washington.

Only 25 minutes away from Northwood by bus is the Capitol Building, where every day the nation's leaders make decisions that are important to Northwood not only as a school, but as a part of the world which looks toward Washington to guide it.

Dear Mrs. Anderson —

My last few years at Northwood would have been "dead" except for the decorators club — and if it hadn't been for your guidance, understanding attitudes and wonderful personality there wouldn't have been a decorators club. Thank you for everything you've done for us, especially giving us that extra encouragement needed to get the job done at the last minute. I'll never forget you as our [illegible] I hope to come back and visit with you during school if you don't mind. May you have many years of [illegible] God bless you always!

Love from an admiring student,
and friend,

WASHINGTON, 1963

Cooling ripples of the Reflecting Pool
Swirling between my toes.

Pink breath of the cherry blossoms
Gently teasing my nostrils.

Light melodies from the Watergate joining with a soft breeze to Gently push canoes down the Potomac.

Majestic marble pillars
Parting to reveal the eternal face of Lincoln.

Coffeehouse smell of spices
Blending with pungent smoke.

Blaring rat-atat of machines on 16th Street
Singing a song to impatient horns and whistles.

Red brick buildings
Shading hot sweaty slum children.

Footsteps echoing on shiny, wet,
Lamp-lit Georgetown pavements.

This was Washington, 1963.

Mrs. Anderson:
You been Great this year in Shorthand and Office class. During which time, I have learned a great deal of work in both classes, Aya ~~~ } A 0)/ 6.

Mrs. "A"-My best wishes with you always. It's been great having you for a teacher.

Dear Mrs. "A",
It's really been very enjoyable having you as a two-time teacher. What I'd have done without you I can't conceive. My shorthand is getting there and the ink from the mimeoscope is still here (on my hands).
P.S. Love, Carla (Whitey)

To Mrs. Anderson.
In all my years at Northwood I considered
you the sweetest teacher I've had. At times I know it was hard for you
to put up with me,
and I can't say I blame
you. Nevertheless, It's been wonderful having you for Office Practice this year. I'll always treasure that and hope we'll be friends always.

Mrs. Anderson-
I have thoroughly enjoyed being in your Office Practice class. You are the one of the sweetest teachers I've ever had. I had a lot of fun in 4th period class. Maybe I'll get a chance to come back
and see you next year.
Lots of luck and best wishes always.
God bless you.
